5 Last weekend, I went hiking with my friends. We love to walk in nature, so we chose a trail in the mountains. The weather was perfect—sunny but not too hot.

10 We started early in the morning. The trail was quiet, and we could hear birds singing. The path went through a forest with tall trees. The air smelled fresh, and the leaves under our feet made a soft sound as we walked.

15 After an hour, the trail became steeper. We climbed up a hill, and it was a little hard, but we helped each other. At the top, we stopped to rest. The view was amazing. We could see the valley 20 below, with green fields and a small river. It was so peaceful.

 We sat down to eat our lunch. We brought sandwiches, apples, and water. Eating outside 25 always tastes better. We talked and laughed, enjoying the moment.

After lunch, we continued hiking. The path went along a stream. The water was clear, and we 30 could see small fish swimming. We crossed a wooden bridge and took some pictures. The sound of the water was relaxing.

By the afternoon, we reached a lake. It was 35 big and blue, with mountains all around. Some of us went for a swim, while others just sat by the shore. The water was cold but refreshing.

The hike back was easier because it was 40 mostly downhill. We were tired but happy. The sun was setting, and the sky turned orange and pink. It was beautiful.

Hiking is more than just walking. It's about 45 being in nature, seeing new places, and spending time with friends. It makes me feel alive. I can't wait to go again.
