

The investigation into Ford's actions led to a number of legal proceedings. One of the most significant was a police investigation that resulted in a number of criminal charges being laid against Ford's associates, including his friend and occasional driver Alexander Lisi. Lisi was charged with drug trafficking, extortion, and other crimes, although he was eventually acquitted of most of the charges.